Dear Darkroom hiring team,

I am writing about the Email Marketing Associate role on your Retention team. You run email and SMS for a portfolio of DTC and e-commerce clients, and that is close to how I already work: at Mar del Plata Digital I segmented our 1,500+ contact customer base into 6 lifecycle groups and personally wrote and sent the first targeted email campaign to it, directly from our ERP. Darkroom describes itself as the first AI-native advertising agency and runs retention across email, SMS and lifecycle flows on Klaviyo, and that combination of AI tooling and lifecycle execution is the work I want to do full time.

Here is how my background maps to what this role needs:

- Lifecycle copy and execution: wrote the offer and the email and WhatsApp sequence copy for each of the 6 segments, then wrote and sent the first targeted campaign to a live base, not a mockup.
- Multi-account pace: I run marketing and a 30-post-a-week content calendar across 13 brands at once at Mar del Plata Digital, the same parallel workload of an agency team handling several clients at once.
- Retention instinct: at BBVA I handle CRM operations and 50+ customer enquiries a week with a retention focus, which is where my interest in lifecycle marketing started.
- Automation and AI: at Mar del Plata Digital I automated publishing to 10 Facebook pages and 4 Instagram accounts through the Meta API, and on my own I built 6 live AI marketing tools with Claude Code, including a copy generator and a campaign-plan generator.

To be clear about where I stand: my email and CRM experience is recent, and Klaviyo is in active learning through the Klaviyo Practitioner Certificate I started this month, not yet client flows. What I bring is a campaign built end to end on a live customer base, multi-brand execution under weekly deadlines, a diploma in oral communication and rhetoric for presenting concepts to clients, and a track record of picking up new platforms quickly.

I would welcome the chance to show how I would approach a monthly campaign calendar for one of your retention clients.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Kind regards,

Bianca Dondero
