Dear Virtustant hiring team,

I am writing about the Email Marketing Coordinator role, part-time and fully remote. CRM, email marketing and lifecycle marketing are the specialisation I have chosen deliberately: at BBVA I run daily operations on the bank's CRM and resolve over 50 customer queries a week with a retention focus, and both my Klaviyo self-study and the Google Data Analytics certificate I am working through are steps towards it.

Virtustant runs a live spoken-English screen before anyone reaches a client, and Argentina is where it recruits most. I am a native Spanish speaker with advanced English, and from August to December 2025 I completed a diploma in oral communication and rhetoric at UTN, which is exactly the unscripted speaking that screen tests. I am based in Mar del Plata, and the 09:00 to 13:00 PT window lands in my afternoon.

Here is how my background maps to what the role actually asks for:

- Shipping on a calendar: across three seasons I owned the content calendar for several local brand accounts and published 15 posts per month on Instagram and Facebook, scheduling each publish for its slot and reviewing it before it went live rather than after.
- CRM and segmentation: daily CRM operations in a bank, plus SQL at intermediate level and self-directed practice querying marketing and CRM datasets to isolate the right audience for an action.
- Working from a task queue, unsupervised: I built and shipped three of my own web products with Claude Code, including a production platform with five live AI marketing tools, each scoped into tasks and worked through remotely with nobody checking on me.

On Klaviyo I am actively learning the platform on my own initiative, working through its flows and email-marketing/CRM fundamentals, so the logic behind welcome and abandoned-cart flows is material I am already studying rather than something new to me. I will be equally direct about the rest: I have not yet run client email programmes inside an email service provider professionally, I have not worked in Attentive, Braze or Salesforce, and SMS is not a channel I have executed. Asana is new to me as a tool, though working from a planned queue of tasks is not.

I am currently employed at BBVA and studying for my degree through December 2027, so I would need to give notice. A 20-hour part-time remote role is the shape of work I am looking for, and I would welcome the chance to discuss the 90-day path to taking ownership of client accounts. I look forward to hearing from you.

Kind regards,

Bianca Dondero
