Dear Hiring Team,

I'm applying for the Community Manager & Content Creator role. I'm based in Argentina, work comfortably in advanced English, and can overlap with PST hours. Great footage that never gets seen is exactly the problem I like solving: I've spent the last few years turning brand ideas into content people actually engage with, and I'd rather sharpen a rough idea than wait to be told what to do with it.

Here is how my experience maps to what you need:

- Content & captions: as a Community Manager I planned and shipped 15 posts/month on Instagram and Facebook, designed in Canva, with captions written in each brand's voice to earn saves and comments, not just reach.
- Community & DMs: I engage audiences, answer messages and guide interested people to the next step, and at BBVA I handle 50+ customer queries a week, so keeping DMs warm and on time is second nature.
- Proactive workflow: I use AI tools including Claude Code to draft, repurpose and test content angles fast, and I stay on top of formats that are working right now.

I'll be honest about the gap: hands-on short-form video editing isn't yet part of my daily work, which has centered on design, captions and community. It's the natural next step from the content I already produce, I learn tools quickly on my own, and I'm ready to build that muscle fast in a full-ownership role. What I bring day one is strong instincts for what a piece needs, reliable output, and genuine care for keeping a community engaged.

Vintti's mission of helping people get unstuck and grow is one I'd be glad to put content behind. I'd love to talk.

Kind regards,

Bianca Dondero
