Dear Viral App Launch team,

I am writing to apply for the Jr Campaign Manager role. Client onboarding and structured reporting are already the core of my day-to-day work, and I want to bring that discipline to a team helping startups scale to 10,000 new users and 20 angel and VC investor introductions.

Since your team's founding in 2017 as K&J Growth Hackers, and through its growth into Viral App Launch, you have built a track record launching apps for clients including TikTok and Triller. That combination, a defined onboarding and reporting process applied to a fast-moving mobile landscape, is exactly the kind of structured, client-facing work I want to keep building toward. Here is how my experience maps to what the role needs:

- Client onboarding & communication: primary point of contact for banking clients at BBVA, resolving 50+ inquiries per week and guiding 100+ clients per week through digital-channel onboarding.
- Multi-account execution: planned and delivered monthly content campaigns for several seasonal brand clients at once, keeping quality consistent across every account.
- Data-driven reporting (in progress): completing the Google Data Analytics Professional Certificate to bring structure and evidence to tracking and reporting, not just gut feel.

I am upfront about where I am still building experience: my client-facing work at BBVA is close to, but not the same as, dedicated account management, and my hands-on time is with Meta Business Suite's organic tools rather than Meta Ads Manager or Google and TikTok Ads reporting. What I bring is a genuine service mindset, a demonstrated ability to keep several accounts running smoothly at once, and the discipline to learn fast while working and studying in parallel, exactly the pace a proactive, process-driven team needs.

I am based in Mar del Plata, Argentina, fully remote-ready with my own computer and phone, and glad to bring organised, client-first execution to your onboarding and reporting process.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Kind regards,

Bianca Dondero
