Dear Rove Concepts hiring team,

I am writing about the Marketing Manager, AI and Lifecycle role for Rove Next. You want a function that scales through AI and systems instead of headcount, built clean rather than inherited, by someone who builds the answer instead of proposing it. That instinct is what I have been proving, one shipped product at a time.

Rove Concepts has run its own artisan workshop end to end since 2011, owning quality from raw material through to delivery rather than outsourcing it. I want to bring that same end-to-end ownership to Rove Next's marketing, starting with email and lifecycle.

Here is what I can put to work immediately:

- AI shipped, not proposed: I built and shipped two live products end to end with Claude Code. One, fase1-ga4-dashboard.vercel.app, pulls real BigQuery GA4 ecommerce data and writes its own daily AI executive summary with Gemini. The other, fase1-plataforma.vercel.app, generates on-brand copy variants with the Gemini API. When I hit a wall, I build my way through it rather than wait for someone else to.
- CRM and retention discipline: daily hands-on CRM operations at BBVA Argentina, resolving over 50 customer queries a week with retention as the explicit priority.
- Quality control: pre-publication checks on copy, creative and links as a Community Manager holding several brand accounts to their own guidelines across three seasons.
- Analytics groundwork: the GA4 dashboard above, plus the Google Data Analytics Professional Certificate (SQL, spreadsheets, visualisation), in progress.

Two honest gaps: my ecommerce and DTC ownership is not five years deep yet, and my Klaviyo experience is self-directed and in progress, not professional. What I can already show is the pattern the role is testing for, not a resume line.

Based in Mar del Plata, Argentina (GMT-3), I overlap US Eastern hours for a full workday.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Kind regards,

Bianca Dondero
