

Bianca Dondero

biancadondero@gmail.com | +54 223 583-5084 | LinkedIn

September 9, 2026

Dear Bright Vessel hiring team,

I am applying for the Digital Marketing Specialist role. I have spent three summer seasons managing social media accounts for local brands, planning content calendars and publishing 15 posts per month on Instagram and Facebook through Meta Business Suite, which is the day-to-day core of this position.

What draws me to Bright Vessel is that you keep development and marketing in the same room. An agency built on WordPress and WooCommerce work treats a post as part of a system that ends in a transaction, not as a standalone deliverable. That matches how I already work: at Inmobiatica.com I produced conversion-oriented content for an online real-estate platform, where a post was judged by the enquiries it generated, not by likes.

Here is what I would take on from day one:

- Social media and content calendars: planning, creating, scheduling and publishing across client accounts, and engaging with audiences in comments and messages to build brand awareness.
- Consistent messaging across teams: keeping brand voice and visuals aligned while coordinating with the designers and developers who build the assets.
- Metrics and reporting: I am completing the Google Data Analytics Professional Certificate (SQL, spreadsheets, data visualisation), so I can turn campaign performance into readable reports and concrete recommendations.

To be straightforward: my analytics and paid media exposure comes from the Google certificate and my degree, not from professionally running Google Analytics or ad accounts, so I would learn your reporting and advertising stack on the job while contributing full speed on social, content and community from week one. My current role at BBVA, guiding over 100 customers per week through digital channels, has made me quick at picking up new systems.

I am based in Mar del Plata, work in advanced English, and am fully set up for remote collaboration across time zones. I would welcome the chance to discuss how I can support your partner brands, and look forward to hearing from you.

Kind regards,

Bianca Dondero