

Bianca Dondero

biancadondero@gmail.com | +54 223 583-5084 | LinkedIn

September 9, 2026

Dear Gro.Inc hiring team,

I am applying for the Executive & Marketing Assistant role. You need someone who publishes on schedule, writes clearly, keeps client-facing work accurate and never lets a task drop, and that is the kind of work I have been doing for the past three years: content calendars and scheduled posts as a Community Manager, and daily CRM, email and case follow-up at a bank.

A small consultancy supporting service businesses across the USA is exactly the setting I want: the work is concrete and one organised assistant visibly changes how much the founders can take on. Here is how I would take work off your team's plate from the start:

- Scheduling and publishing content: I planned and published 15 posts per month on Instagram and Facebook through Meta Business Suite across several brand accounts and three seasons, holding the calendar and fixing scheduling problems before they became missed posts.
- Writing and email: I write the copy myself, in Spanish and English, with a UTN diploma in oral and written communication. At BBVA I handle inbox and CRM work daily, closing over 50 customer queries per week.
- Data gathering and client updates: I am completing the Google Data Analytics certificate (SQL, spreadsheets, visualisation), so turning numbers into a short, readable client update is work I am trained for.
- AI as a working tool: I use ChatGPT and Claude, including Claude Code, to draft, restructure and proofread content faster, always with a human check before anything is published. Banking work also taught me to follow procedure exactly and handle confidential information properly.

To be straightforward: my marketing experience is three years of hands-on assistant and community management work rather than the 3 to 5 years you list, and I have not yet used Submagic or Basecamp, though I pick up publishing and task-tracking tools quickly.

The part-time structure suits me well: roughly 30 hours per week on U.S. Eastern Time fits alongside my Marketing degree at Universidad CAECE, so I can hold those hours consistently. I work from Mar del Plata, Argentina, with high-speed internet and a dedicated workspace. I look forward to hearing from you.

Kind regards,

Bianca Dondero