Dear Digital Executive hiring team,

I am applying for the Email Marketing Specialist role. The way you frame email, not as a newsletter but as a lever on LTV, conversion and retention, is exactly the direction I am building my career around: data-driven retention and customer-lifecycle marketing.

At BBVA I run daily CRM operations and own the customer relationship with a focus on retention, and alongside this I am completing the Google Data Analytics Professional Certificate to turn metrics into decisions. Here is how my background maps to what you need:

- Retention & CRM: daily operations on a banking CRM, prioritizing retention, customer experience and lifetime value.
- Metrics to action: data training (SQL, spreadsheets, visualization) to monitor open rate, CTR, conversion and deliverability and build clear reports.
- Campaigns & calendars: content-calendar planning and 15 monthly posts across multiple local brands, always conversion-focused.

I am direct about my starting point: my hands-on experience is not yet in Klaviyo or a DTC email stack, and I have not run e-commerce lifecycle flows at scale. What I bring is a solid base in retention, data reading and content, plus a proven ability to learn fast while working: I hold a full-time role, study a Marketing degree and complete a data certificate in parallel. Klaviyo and Shopify are the next skills I am building toward this role.

I am based in Mar del Plata, Argentina, work in advanced English, and a 9am to 5pm EST schedule fits me comfortably. I work fully remote with a reliable computer and high-speed internet, and I would bring data orientation, customer focus and consistent execution to a team that decides with evidence, not intuition.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Kind regards,
