Dear Monks hiring team,

I am writing to apply for the Junior Analytics Consultant role for LATAM. The description fits how I already work: I like numbers and data analysis, I deal with clients every day, and I learn tools on my own. I am training in data analytics through the Google Data Analytics Professional Certificate (SQL, spreadsheets, data visualization) while working in client-facing roles.

Here is how my experience maps to what you are looking for:

- Data and tools: Google Data Analytics training in SQL, spreadsheets and data visualization, applied to turning raw data into decisions.
- Clients and accounts: at BBVA I guide over 100 clients per week, work daily on the bank's CRM, and understand needs before proposing a next step.
- Digital marketing: hands-on with Instagram, Facebook and Meta Business Suite, running conversion-oriented content for local brands.

What draws me to Monks specifically is that it is the digital-first, data-driven brand of S4 Capital, built to turn first-party data into marketing decisions, including through the Monks.Flow platform. That is exactly the direction I am moving toward: combining marketing with data instead of intuition. I know Google Analytics, R and Python are not in my toolkit yet, and I am motivated to pick them up quickly, the same way I have taught myself the tools I use now.

I work well in a team, I prioritize getting the job done over my ego, and I take the initiative to find answers to problems I face for the first time. I would welcome the chance to bring that to your Consulting team.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Kind regards,

Bianca Dondero
