Dear Right Hook Digital hiring team,

I am writing about the Klaviyo Email (Retention) Specialist role. You describe it as the execution engine inside a retention pod, the person who makes strategy real by keeping the calendar current, briefing the design work and making sure every send goes out on-brand, on-time and error-free. That is the kind of detail-obsessed execution I do today: at BBVA I run daily operations on the bank's CRM with a clear focus on retention, and across three seasons I owned the content calendar for several brands at once.

Here is how my background maps to what this role needs:

- Multiple clients at once: at Mar del Plata Digital I managed social media and the content calendar for several local brands simultaneously, keeping each account current and nothing slipping.
- Detail and QA: I catch errors before a publish goes live, not after; I wrote conversion-oriented copy, briefed the visual work in Canva and QA'd every post for on-brand, on-time delivery.
- Reporting and client communication: I compile and explain metrics in Google Sheets, complete the Google Data Analytics certificate, and communicate directly with over 100 customers a week at BBVA.

I will be direct about fit. This posting asks for at least a year of hands-on Klaviyo, and I do not have it yet: my retention and CRM work has been in banking, and my knowledge of welcome, abandonment, post-purchase and win-back flows is studied rather than shipped in Klaviyo. What I do bring is genuine multi-client execution, disciplined calendar and QA habits, spreadsheet reporting and a fast learning curve on new tools. I would step in knowing I have platform ground to make up, and your pod structure and Kaizen culture are exactly where I would want to close it, supported by a strategist and learning fast alongside people who care about the craft.

If you are open to a candidate who is strong on retention execution and detail and ready to go deep on Klaviyo and SMS, I would welcome the chance to make the case, and I will include the 2-minute intro video with my application.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Kind regards,

Bianca Dondero
