Dear TGTC hiring team,

I am applying for the Lifecycle & Retention Marketing Manager role you are recruiting for. Retention is already the metric I am measured on: at BBVA I run daily CRM operations and guide over 100 customers per week through digital-channel adoption, resolving more than 50 queries weekly with retention as the explicit goal, not a side effect.

I understand TGTC matches marketing and ops talent from Latin America with fast-growing DTC brands, so I imagine this client is looking for someone who can operate independently from day one. What draws me to the role itself is its shape: one person owning the full customer journey across email, SMS and loyalty, rather than a single channel in isolation. That end-to-end view is how I already think about a customer relationship, even though my channels to date have been CRM, social and content rather than ecommerce lifecycle flows. Here is what I would bring from week one:

- Retention-first CRM operations: daily work inside a bank's CRM, translating customer data into the follow-up and retention actions that keep 100+ customers per week engaged with digital channels.
- Content and calendar discipline: three consecutive summer seasons building monthly content calendars and publishing 15 posts per month across Instagram and Facebook, adjusting angles season to season based on what performed.
- Conversion-minded copy: at Inmobiliatica.com, posts were judged by enquiries generated, not likes, the same "does it convert" standard a lifecycle flow is held to.
- Evidence over intuition: I am completing the Google Data Analytics Professional Certificate (SQL, spreadsheets, data visualisation) to read performance data and turn it into concrete recommendations.

To be direct about the gap: I have not yet run Shopify, Klaviyo, SMS platforms or SEO/AIO tooling in a professional ecommerce setting, and the posting names these as central to the role. They sit close enough to my CRM and segmentation work that I expect to pick them up quickly, and I would rather say that plainly now than have it surface later. What I can contribute from week one is the CRM strategy, segmentation logic and retention analysis that already come from my current work.

I am based in Mar del Plata, Argentina, work in advanced English, and am set up for full-time remote collaboration across time zones. I would welcome the opportunity to discuss the role further, and look forward to hearing from you.

Kind regards,

Bianca Dondero
